

JAS Author Instructions – Symposia Papers

Authors of Invited Symposia Papers for ASAS 2008, Indianapolis, IN

Submission of invited symposia papers. The ASAS Board has reworked the protocols for handling papers from the meeting. The biggest change is that JAS has its own Symposia Editor in addition to the other reviewing editors. For JAS, the Symposia Editor is Mark Mirando. As in previous years, authors should submit their papers to Manuscript Central. When submitting the manuscript, under ‘Manuscript Type,’ the authors should click “Symposium.”

Papers must be submitted by July 25, 2008, for consideration for publication as a symposium paper. As in past years, papers from the meeting will be published as an electronic supplement, which will be made available in searchable databases, such as PubMed, MedLine, AgriCola, Highwire, and Current Contents.

The manuscript should be prepared using the ‘JAS Style and Form,’ which is available at <http://jas.fass.org/misc/ifora.shtml>. Papers are limited to 10 pages in final print form. Ten journal pages translate to approximately 35 double-spaced typewritten pages. Authors will not be charged for this online publication, but the symposia editors, in conjunction with the overall program chair, are charged with limiting publication of symposium papers to those they have identified as most significant. If you have a question regarding papers published from your symposium, please contact your program chair or the Symposia Editor.

Note: These guidelines are for those who have been invited to publish their papers. Being asked to present is not the same as being asked to publish.
